

Dr and to generate a log of the monitored data, the log indicating the selections of the plurality of operations by the user;

E1 a communicating device configured to communicate the log of the monitored data to a remote site.

Dr 8. (Three Times Amended) A system comprising:

E1 interface means of a target application means, the interface means for providing a plurality of operations to be selected by a user;

monitoring means for directly monitoring user selections of the plurality of operations of the interface means by the user automatically upon start-up of the target application means, and for generating a log of the monitored data, the log indicating the selections of the plurality of operations by the user;

communicating means for communicating the log of the monitored data to a remote site.

Dr 15. (Three Times Amended) A method of monitoring usage of an interface of a target application, the interface including a plurality of operations to be selected by a user, comprising the steps of:

E1 directly monitoring user selections of the plurality of operations of the interface by the user automatically upon start-up of the target application;

generating a log of the monitored data, the log indicating the selections of the plurality of operations by the user; and communicating the log of the monitored data to a remote site.

Dr 22. (Three Times Amended) A computer program product comprising: